Responsive Frameworks

UI Design Patterns

Collaboration is key in an RWD World

““ Design in the absence of content is not design... its decoration.

-Zeldman

““ A website with a nice design and poor content is like a restaurant with great ambiance but they don't serve food.

-Jeremy

Discovery Phase

Client defines goals for the site (2-3)

Collaborate on a site taxonomy

Client develops the content

““ Can't we just move the content over as-is and rework it later?

-Client

YOU CAN'T

NO YOU CAN'T

NO

“ Design is fun. Writing content is hard.

-Me

Design Phase

90% of our projects don't have a Photoshop phase...

(but some do)

Design Phase

Design rough comp once in Photoshop

- Desktop and maybe mobile view

Review comp with client to get sign off

Clients only care about home page

Log the issues

The screenshot shows a Trello board for a project named "Blink". The board is organized into four columns: "To Do", "Test Findings", "Doing", and "Done".

- To Do:
 - update blink page not found (1 comment)
 - Weather Widget (1 comment)
 - Blink Promotions (1 comment)
 - New Blink header on old content pages (Oct 11)
 - Phase 1 Launch (Oct 25)
 - Blink content page CMS templates
 - Test migration tool (1 comment)
 - Home page content for Phase 1 (Oct 23)
- Test Findings:
 - Firefox nav issue (1 comment)
 - System status area only accepts h1 (1 comment)
 - fix line spacing below news area (1 comment)
- Doing:
 - Redesign My Blink according to new layout (5 comments, Oct 18)
 - Blink home page CMS template (Oct 4)
- Done:
 - Data definition edits (1 comment)
 - Blink menu button
 - Build out Home Page HTML & CSS based on Design comp (2 comments, Jul 26)
 - inventory content types for non-home page layouts
 - Home Page Design Comp (11 comments, Jun 28)

At the bottom of the board, there is a large "blink" logo and an "Add a card..." button.

Use Trello to manage projects

The screenshot displays a Trello workspace titled "CMS sites" with a "Private" status. The interface includes a top navigation bar with the Trello logo, a search icon, a "Help" link, and "Notifications" and "Boards" buttons. On the right side, there are links for "Calendar" and "Show sidebar".

The workspace is organized into five boards, each containing a list of project cards:

- To Do: Cards include "Yankelovich Center - Social Sciences" (1 comment, 1 edit, due Oct 30), "Revelle Content Refresh" (2 comments), "Undergraduate College Business Office" (4 comments), "IR/PS", "IGCC" (1 comment), "Diversity Matters", "NRS" (8 comments, 1 edit, due Dec 6), and "Warren College".
- Content Migration: Cards include "Sustainability redesign" (6 comments, due Aug 30), "Stats about students" (1 comment), "Black Resource Center" (2 comments, due Oct 13), "Bioengineering" (17 comments, 3 edits, due Oct 25), "Marshall redesign" (3 comments, due Oct 7), "Center for Energy Research" (3 comments, due Oct 16), "Education Studies" (8 comments, due Oct 2), "Division of Arts and Humanities" (9 comments, due Nov 15), and "Roosevelt redesign" (7 comments, 2 edits).
- Customer Review: Cards include "FD&C section of RMP" (due Oct 4) and "Brain Mapping Center" (1 comment, 1 edit, due Oct 9).
- Live: Cards include "Korean Studies" (1 comment, 1 edit, due Oct 2), "ISP" (4 comments, due Sep 26), "RMP home page template" (5 comments), "Undergraduate Research Portal Redesign" (7 comments, due Sep 30), "Algae - CalCAB" (6 comments, due Sep 18), "African American Studies Program" (8 comments, 3 edits, due Sep 4), "Blink Research" (4 comments, due Sep 12), "USMEX" (9 comments), and "PDEL" (18 comments).
- On Hold: Cards include "CASPO" (4 comments, 2 edits), "Health Law" (24 comments, 2 edits), "Status of Women" (3 comments, 1 edit), "Advancement Services (Blink)" (1 comment), "Innovation and Industry Alliances", "Math", "ADP-Internet", "Chinese Studies", "CER" (1 comment), and "Hour Campaign sites".

Each card typically shows a title, a list of comments, an edit icon, a due date, and a small profile picture of the assignee. An "Add a card..." button is visible at the bottom of each board.

Mobile First Philosophy

Start with the essential elements for small screens

Starting at lowest denominator gets you to think twice about what you add

Content comes first

Mobile first is hard

Most of our stuff isn't designed this way

Ontouch not onclick

Mobile first & old browsers

Older versions of IE will be served the mobile RWD layout with mobile first

Can use polyfills to make old IE responsive (performance hit)

Conditional IE stylesheets are a good approach

Frameworks can help speed

The varying viewports that our websites encounter on a daily basis continue to demand more from responsive design. Not only must we continue to tackle the issues of content choreography — the art of maintaining order and context throughout the chaotic ebb and flow of the Web browser — but we must also meet the expectations of users.

Campus Web CMS

The campus offers a Web content management tool to manage your UC San Diego Web site. The advantages of using the campus CMS are:

- It allows people with little or no experience to build and maintain professional Web sites, using the campus templates.
- It creates a more coherent Web presence across the UC San Diego Web space.
- We'll help you migrate your website and teach you how to use the system.
- It's free for campus units.

What are the prerequisites?

1. Your site must be permanent. One-time events, notices, and other temporary items should be advertised on an existing website.
2. You (or someone in your area) is committed to owning and updating the website on a regular basis.
3. You agree to use the standard campus-wide templates.

What product is the campus using?

Based on extensive analysis, we've chosen to use Hannon Hill Cascade Server.

Who can use the CMS?

The CMS is available to UCSD Academic & Administrative units. At this time, we cannot support labs, student organizations, or Health Sciences sites:

- Health Sciences clients can find information on branding and templates on the Health Sciences Branding site.
- ACMS provides websites for student organizations.
- ACMS also provides web development on a recharge basis for UCSD clients.

What is the cost for clients?

The Campus Web CMS is free. The system and services are funded by Administrative Computing & Telecommunications (ACT).

Next steps

1. Review the Web CMS Service Level Agreement \(SLA\).
2. Determine if you are comfortable with the design templates.
3. Schedule a 30 minute demo and consultation to determine if the campus CMS is right for you.

Campus Web CMS

The campus offers a Web content management tool to manage your UC San Diego Web site. The advantages of using the campus CMS are:

- It allows people with little or no experience to build and maintain professional Web sites, using the campus templates.
- It creates a more coherent Web presence across the UC San Diego Web space.
- We'll help you migrate your website and teach you how to use the system.
- It's free for campus units.

What are the prerequisites?

1. Your site must be permanent. One-time events, notices, and other temporary items should be advertised on an existing website.
2. You (or someone in your area) is committed to owning and updating the website on a regular basis.
3. You agree to use the standard campus-wide templates.

What product is the campus using?

Based on extensive analysis, we've chosen to use Hannon Hill Cascade Server.

Who can use the CMS?

The CMS is available to UCSD Academic & Administrative units. At this time, we cannot support labs, student organizations, or Health Sciences sites:

- Health Sciences clients can find information on branding and templates on the Health Sciences Branding site.
- ACMS provides websites for student organizations.
- ACMS also provides web development on a recharge basis for UCSD clients.

What is the cost for clients?

The Campus Web CMS is free. The system and services are funded by Administrative Computing & Telecommunications (ACT).

1. Review the Campus Web CMS Service Level Agreement \(SLA\).
2. Decide if you are comfortable with the design templates.
3. Schedule a 30 minute demo and consultation to determine if the campus CMS is right for you.

Next steps

Multi-Device Layout Patterns

by Luke Wroblewski

March 14, 2012

"When people talk about innovation in this decade, they really mean design"

—Bruce Nussbaum, 2005

Through fluid grids and media query adjustments, responsive design enables Web page layouts to adapt to a variety of screen sizes. As more designers embrace this technique, we're not only seeing a lot of innovation but the emergence of clear patterns as well. I cataloged what seem to be the most popular of these patterns for adaptable multi-device layouts.

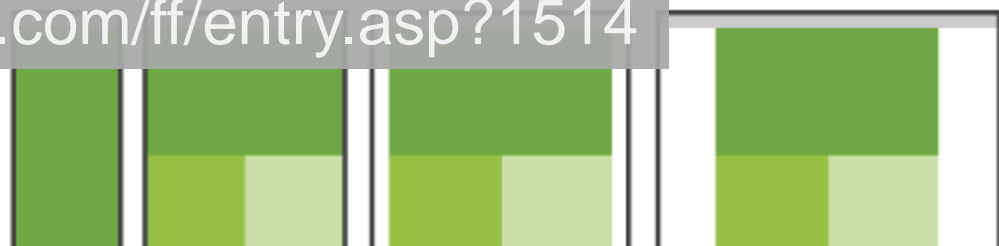

To get a sense of emerging responsive design layout patterns, I combed through all the examples curated on the Media Queries gallery site several times. I looked for what high-level patterns showed up most frequently and tried to avoid defining separate patterns where there were only small differences.

Mostly Fluid

The most popular pattern was perhaps surprisingly simple: a multi-column layout that introduces larger margins on big screens, relies on fluid grids and images to scale from large screens down to small screen sizes, and stacks columns vertically in its narrowest incarnations (illustrated below).
